

TIR

Lors des premiers Jeux olympiques modernes (Athènes 1896) huit pays participaient aux trois épreuves de tir. A Mexico le programme comportait sept compétitions et réunissait 450 concurrents de soixante-six nationalités différentes, ce qui démontre clairement la popularité sans cesse croissante de ce sport. De construction récente, le Polygone de tir olympique constituait une attraction supplémentaire pour les amateurs qui s'attendaient à de très brillants résultats, encore facilités par des installations ultramodernes. En effet, quatre records olympiques tombèrent: petite carabine, position couchée (Jan Kurka, Tchécoslovaquie); pistolet libre (Grigory Kosykh, URSS); tir de vitesse aux silhouettes (Jozef Zapadzki, Pologne) et arme libre (Gary Anderson, Etats-Unis) tandis qu'un record était établi en skeet, épreuve nouvellement inscrite au programme. Par ailleurs, les titres mondiaux furent améliorés en skeet (Evgeny Petrov, URSS) et en arme libre (Anderson). L'événement le plus inattendu fut sans aucun doute l'échec de l'équipe américaine, incapable de renouveler son exploit de Tokyo où elle avait été citée sept fois. A Mexico elle ne remporta que trois médailles, tandis que les Soviétiques en trustaient cinq. Par contre, l'américain Anderson fut le seul concurrent à conserver son titre de champion olympique.

SHOOTING

At the first of the modern Olympic Games, held in Athens in 1896, eight countries participated in the three events of the shooting competition. In the Mexico City Games, more than 450 marksmen from sixty-six countries were entered in seven events—an indication of the greatly increased contemporary interest in this sport. Capacity crowds turned out on each of the six days of competition. The newly-constructed Olympic Shooting Range was itself an attraction for sportsmen, and it was expected that its ultra-modern facilities would contribute to improved shooting. In fact, no less than four Olympic records were broken—in small-bore rifle prone (by Jan Kurka of Czechoslovakia), free pistol (Grigory Kosykh of the U.S.S.R.), rapid-fire pistol (Josef Zapadzki of Poland) and free rifle (Gary Anderson of the U.S.)—and a record was established in skeet, a new event. World records were bettered in skeet (by Soviet Evgeny Petrov) and free rifle (Anderson). The most surprising aspect of the competition was the failure of the U.S. team to match the seven medals it had taken in Tokyo. In Mexico City, Americans took only three medals, while Soviet marksmen returned supremacy in the sport to Europe by winning five. The American Anderson, however, was the only Tokyo gold-medalist in the entire competition to repeat as Olympic champion.

VOLLEY-BALL

Ce sport n'a été inscrit au programme olympique qu'en 1964, à Tokyo. Pourtant le volley-ball jouissait depuis longtemps d'une grande popularité dans le monde et, à Mexico, les matchs disputés tant à la patinoire Revolución qu'au Gymnase olympique ont attiré un public nombreux. Que ce soit dans la division masculine ou féminine, chaque équipe devait rencontrer toutes les autres en poule unique. Dix pays disputèrent le tournoi masculin dont la rencontre la plus intéressante fut celle qui opposa la Tchécoslovaquie à la fulgurante formation japonaise. L'entraîneur tchèque recommanda à ses joueurs de ne pas forcer dans les premières manches et d'attendre que les Nippons se soient essoufflés. Les Européens s'économisèrent donc pendant les deux premiers sets qu'ils perdirent par 15-2 et 15-3 respectivement mais, à la moitié du troisième, ils se donnèrent à fond et enlevèrent les deux manches suivantes et la partie. Mais ils furent battus dans deux autres matchs tandis que les Soviétiques n'en perdirent qu'un et remportèrent le tournoi. A la surprise générale, l'équipe des Etats-Unis — qui au classement général se retrouvait dans les dernières places — infligea sa seule défaite à l'Union Soviétique. Dans les compétitions féminines, elle ne perdit aucun de ses matchs, apportant ainsi une seconde médaille d'or de volley-ball à son pays.

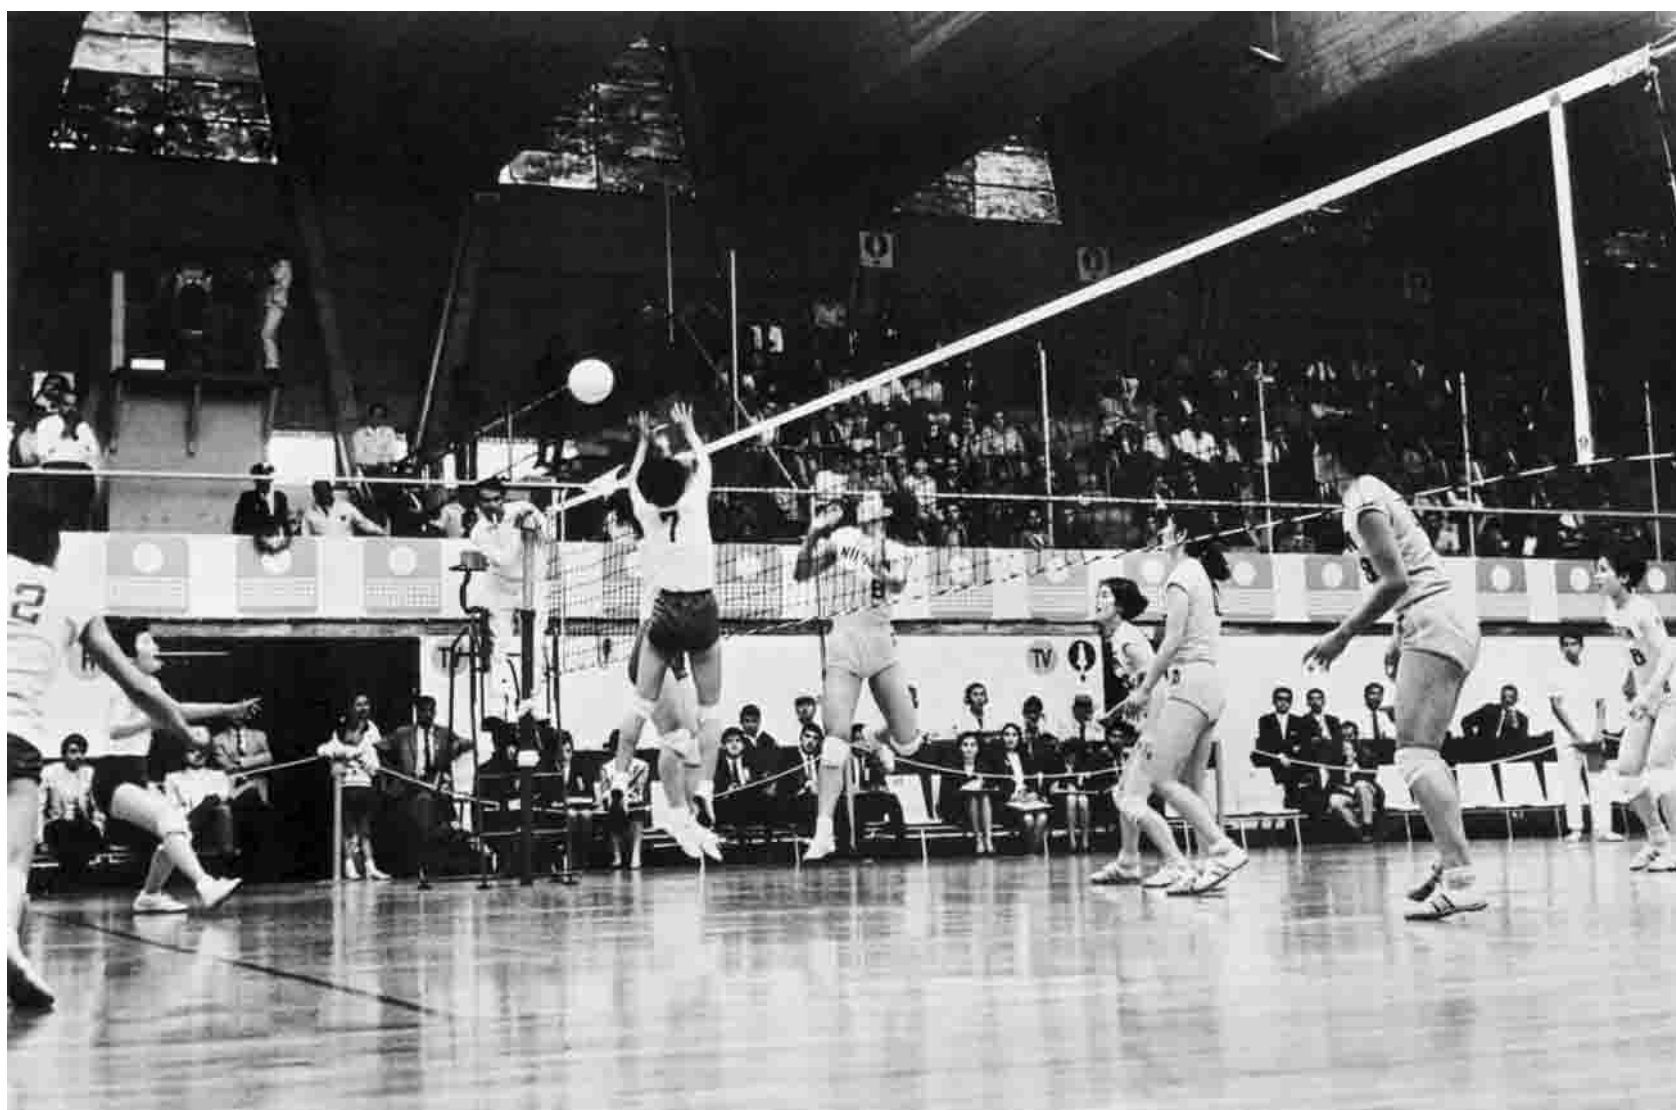

VOLLEYBALL

Volleyball is a very recent addition to the list of official Olympic sports, having been introduced in the 1964 Games in Tokyo. But the game has long been popular all over the world, and during the tournament in Mexico City the stands and temporary seats of the Revolución Ice Rink and the Olympic Gymnasium were usually well filled. In both the men's and women's divisions, each team played every other in a single-pool round robin. Ten nations competed in the men's tournament, in which perhaps the most interesting match pitted Czechoslovakia against the lightning-fast Japanese. The Czech coach's strategy was to let his players conserve their energy while their opponents wore themselves out. His men therefore relaxed and lost the first set 15-2. They hardly increased their efforts in the second set, and lost 15-3. Then halfway through the third set they suddenly sprang into action, came from behind, and won—and kept on chalking up points to win two more sets and the match. But they lost two other matches, while the U.S.S.R. lost only one, to take the championship. Strangely enough, it was the U.S. team—which finished the tournament near the bottom of the list—that handed the Soviets their sole defeat. In the women's competition, the Russians breezed through their matches without a loss to give the Soviets twin gold medals in volleyball.

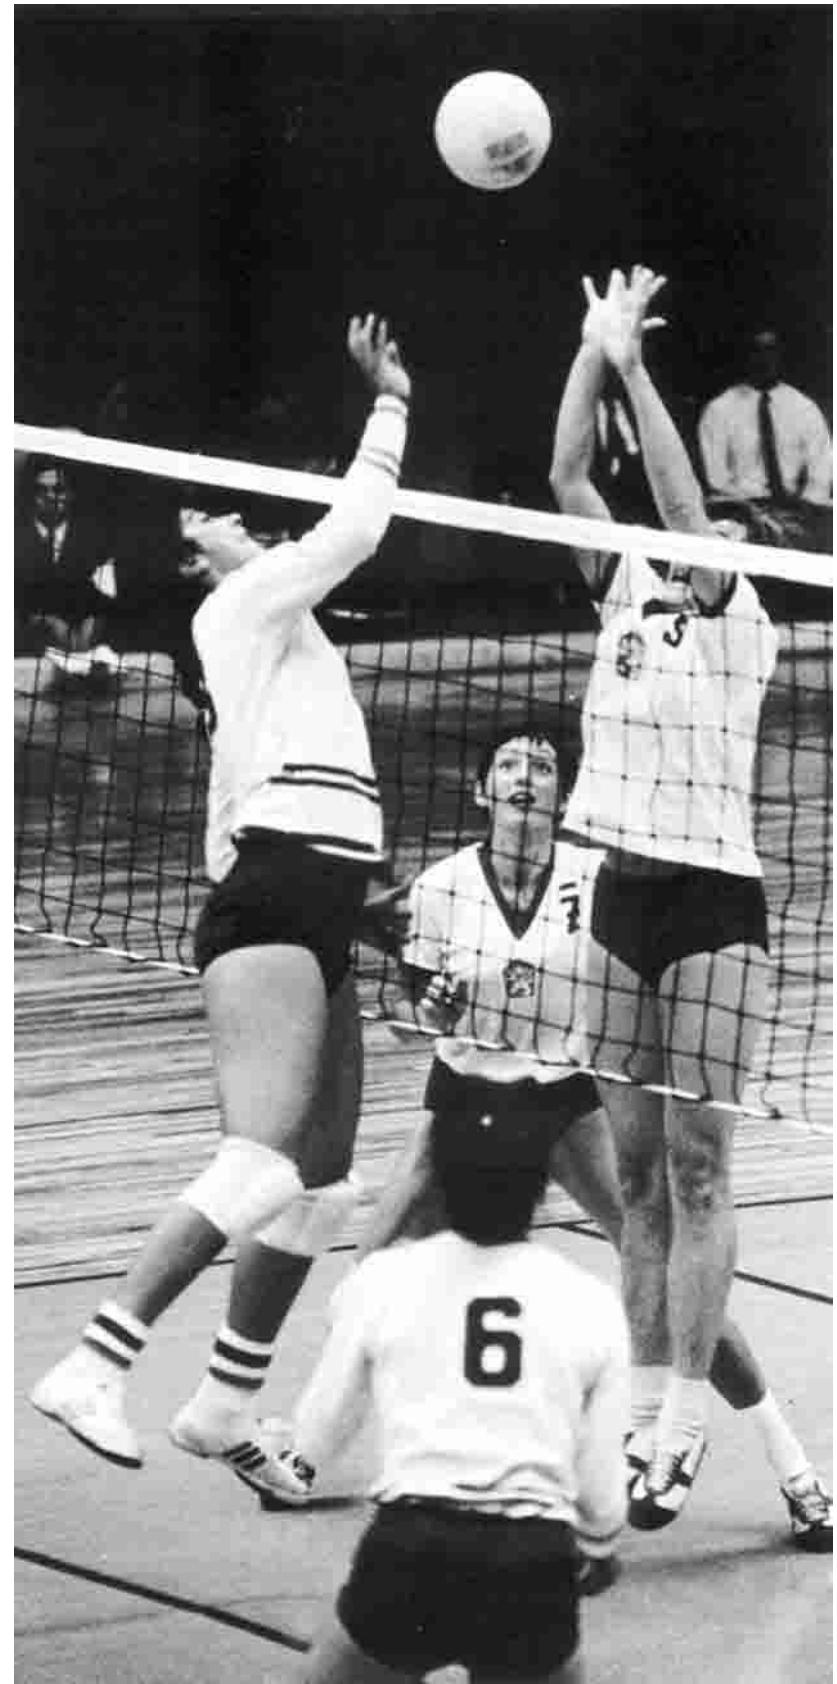

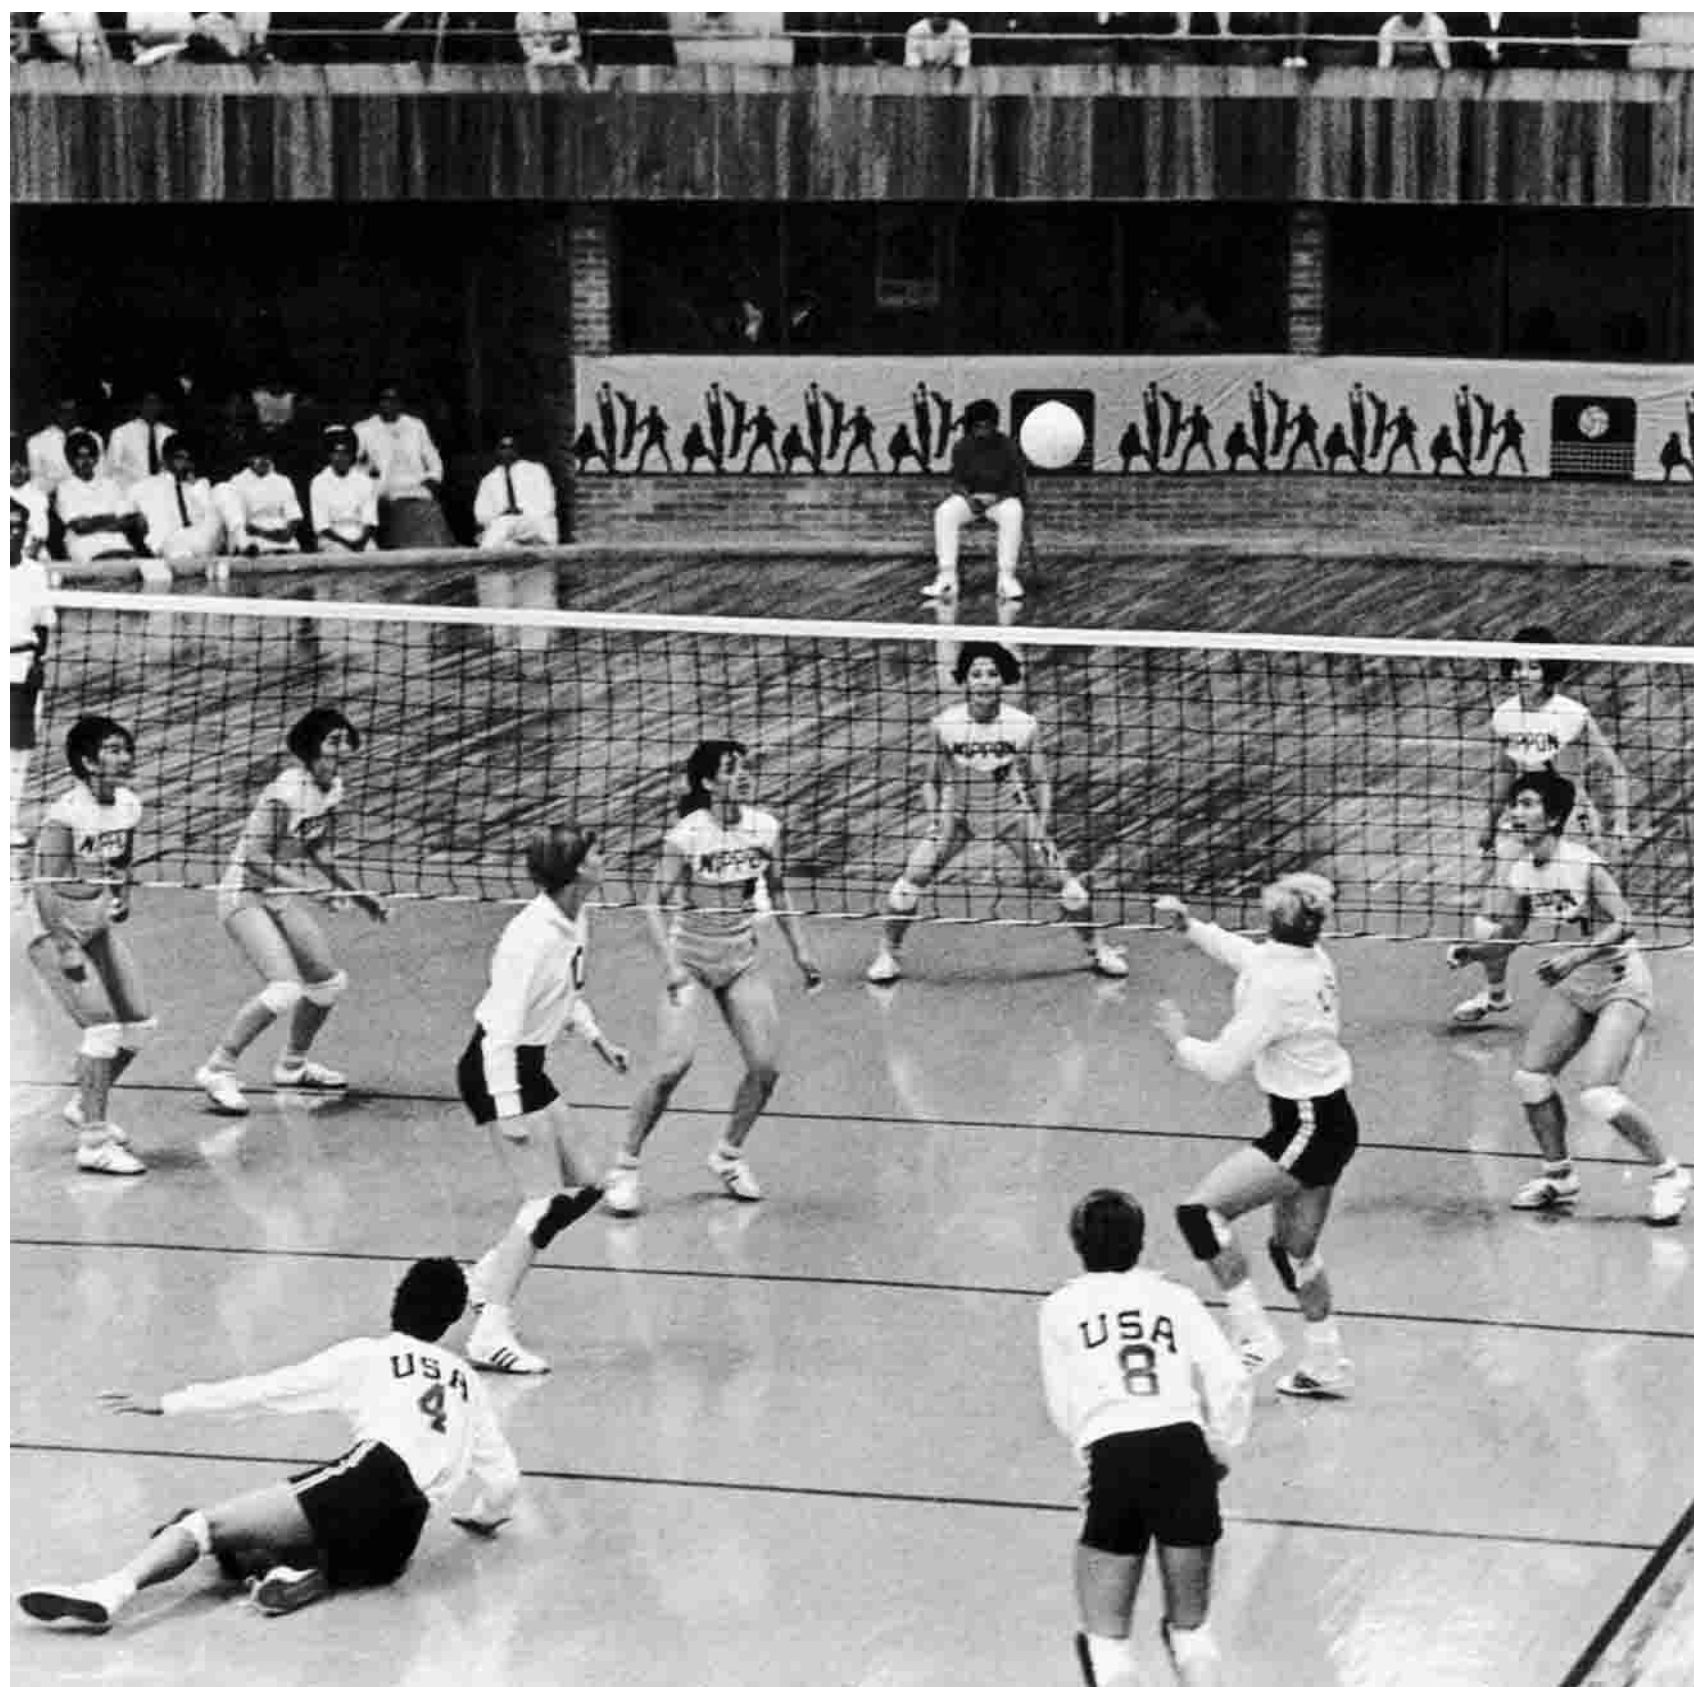

La rencontre féminine Corée-Japon fut, de part et d'autre, une brillante exhibition de rapidité et d'adresse. Les Japonaises, tenantes du titre, devaient remporter six de leurs matchs. Trois équipes de l'hémisphère occidental (page de droite) se relaxent avant le jeu. Les Péruviennes allaient faire sensation en se classant 4es. Face au Mexique (extrême droite), les Tchèques déployèrent une technique qui leur valut une victoire en trois sets.

In one of Japan's six victories in the round-robin tournament, Korea and the defending champion demonstrate the speed and agility basic to the oriental style of play. Three teams from the Western Hemisphere (opposite, top to bottom) relax before game-time. A surprise of the competition, the Peruvian girls placed fourth in the final standings. In a match against Mexico, the Czechs show great form at the net (far right) as they win impressively in straight sets.

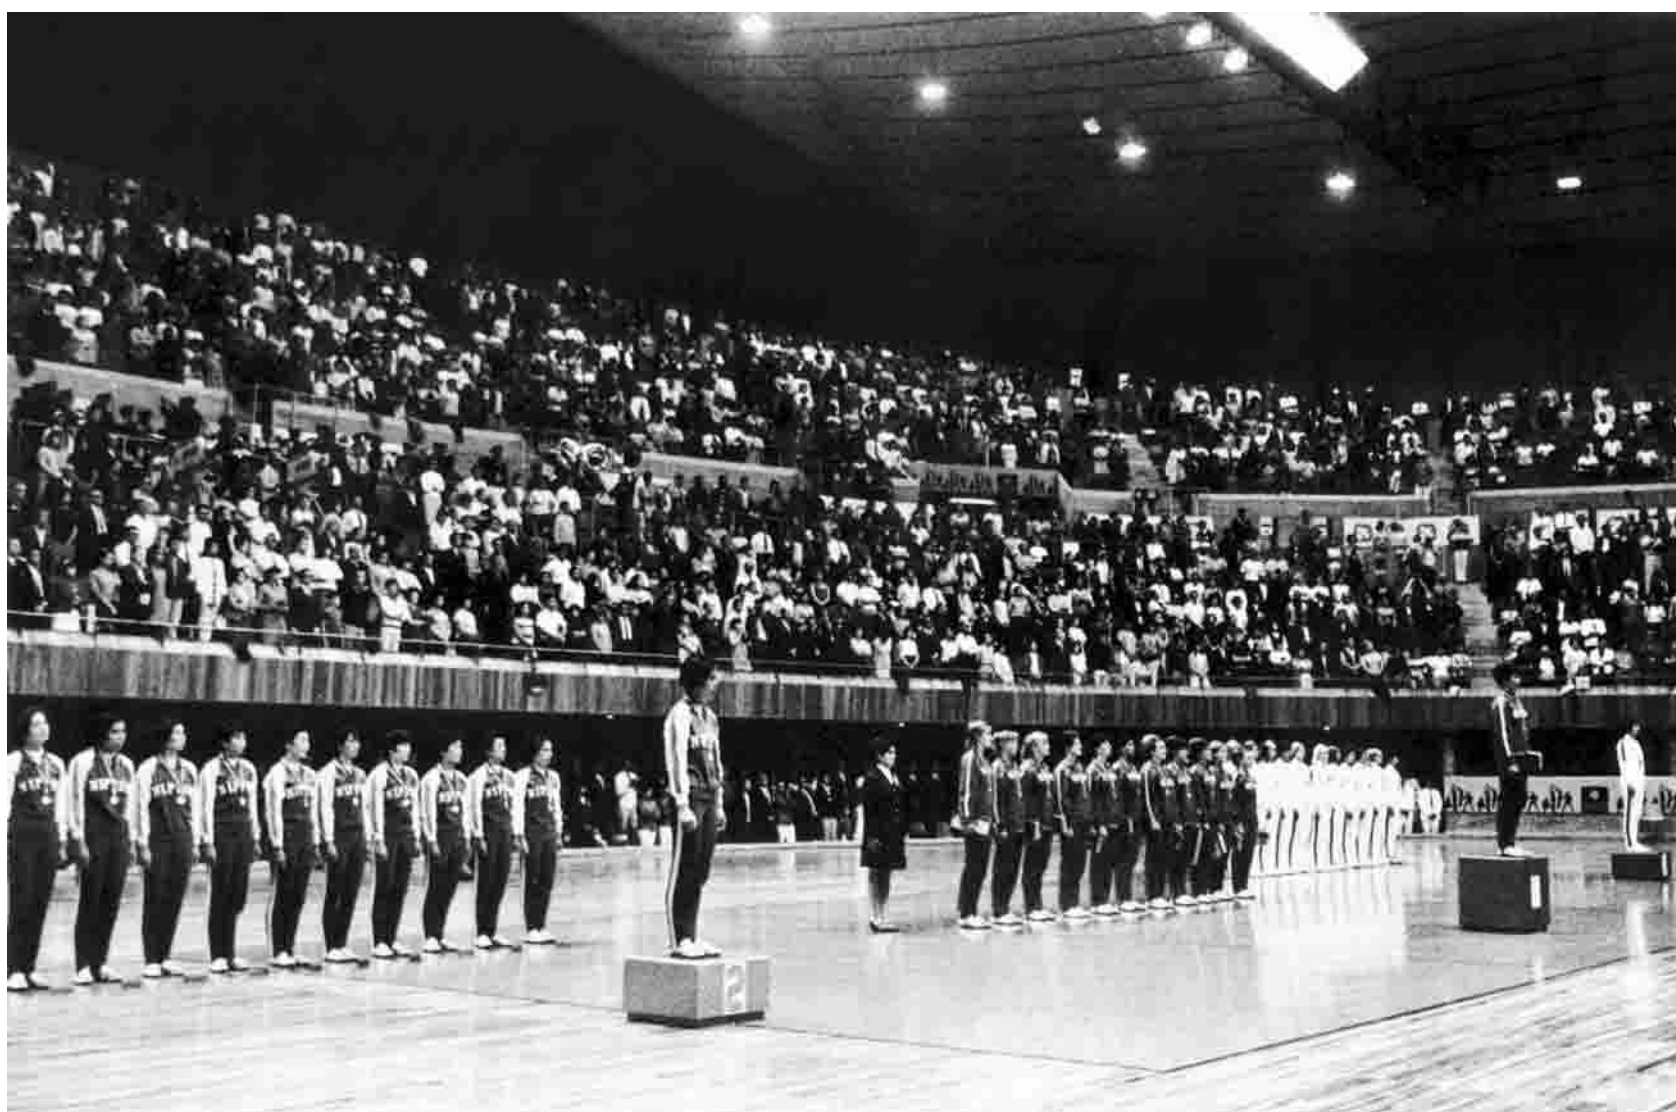

Résolues à défendre leur titre, les Japonaises (page de gauche) s'adjugent une facile victoire sur l'équipe américaine. La Pologne, troisième au classement, bat successivement la Tchécoslovaquie (ci-dessus) et le Pérou (ci-contre, en haut). La Corée, pour sa part, eut raison par 3-1 des Etats-Unis.

On its way to a confrontation with the Soviet Union for the gold medal, Japan (opposite) rolls over the United States 3-0. Poland—which placed third in the final standings—downs Czechoslovakia (above) and then Peru (above, right). Korea (right) also had little difficulty with the U.S. team, winning 3-1.

WATER-POLO

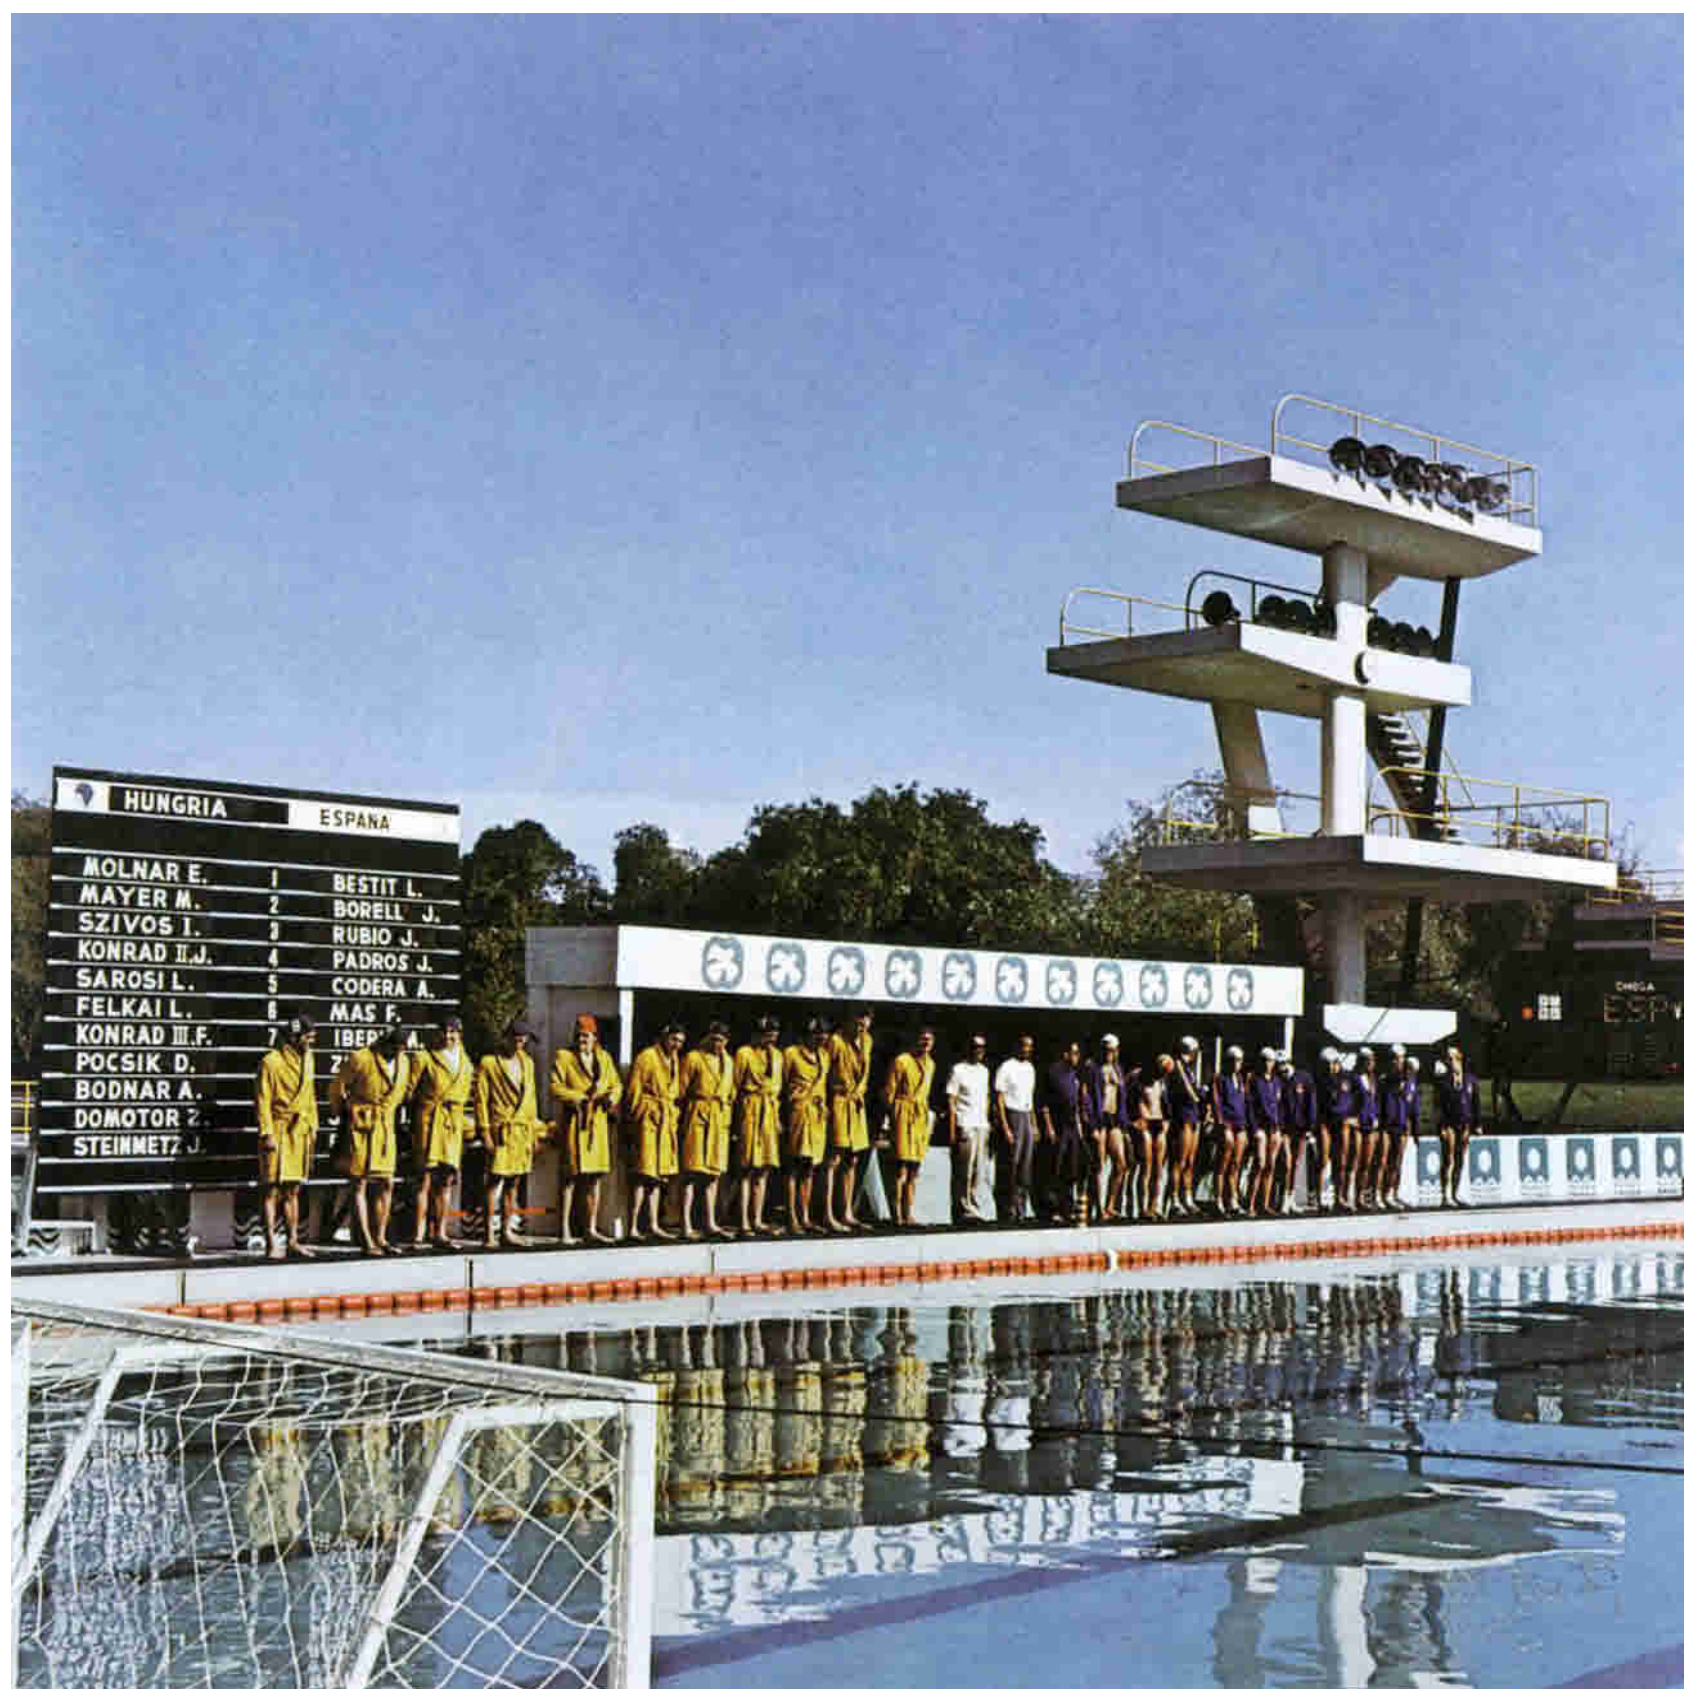

La Hongrie s'est classée pour la première fois parmi l'élite du water-polo en 1928, année où elle remporta une médaille d'argent. Lors des huit Olympiades suivantes, les Magyars s'adjugèrent toujours un trophée, accumulant ainsi 5 médailles d'or, 2 d'argent et une de bronze. Moins titrés que les Hongrois, les Yougoslaves gagnèrent 3 médailles d'argent au cours des dernières années. Quant à la URSS, depuis 1956 elle a remporté une 2^e ou une 3^e place à chacun des rendez-vous olympiques. A la fin des poules éliminatoires du tournoi de Mexico, les "trois grands" restaient en piste à côté d'une équipe italienne résolue. En demi-finale, les Soviétiques battirent les Italiens tandis que la Yougoslavie dominait la Hongrie. Les deux perdants se rencontrèrent alors dans la finale pour la 3^e place — lutte acharnée jusqu'à ce que les Magyars marquent 6 buts successifs. Puis vint la finale Union Soviétique-Yougoslavie. La partie fut dure, les deux équipes adoptant la même stratégie: shooter souvent et impitoyablement. A la fin du temps réglementaire, le score était de 11-11 et ce sont deux formations épuisées qui s'affrontèrent pour la prolongation de quatre minutes. Marquant coup sur coup deux buts, la Yougoslavie s'adjugea sa première médaille d'or dans les compétitions olympiques de water-polo.

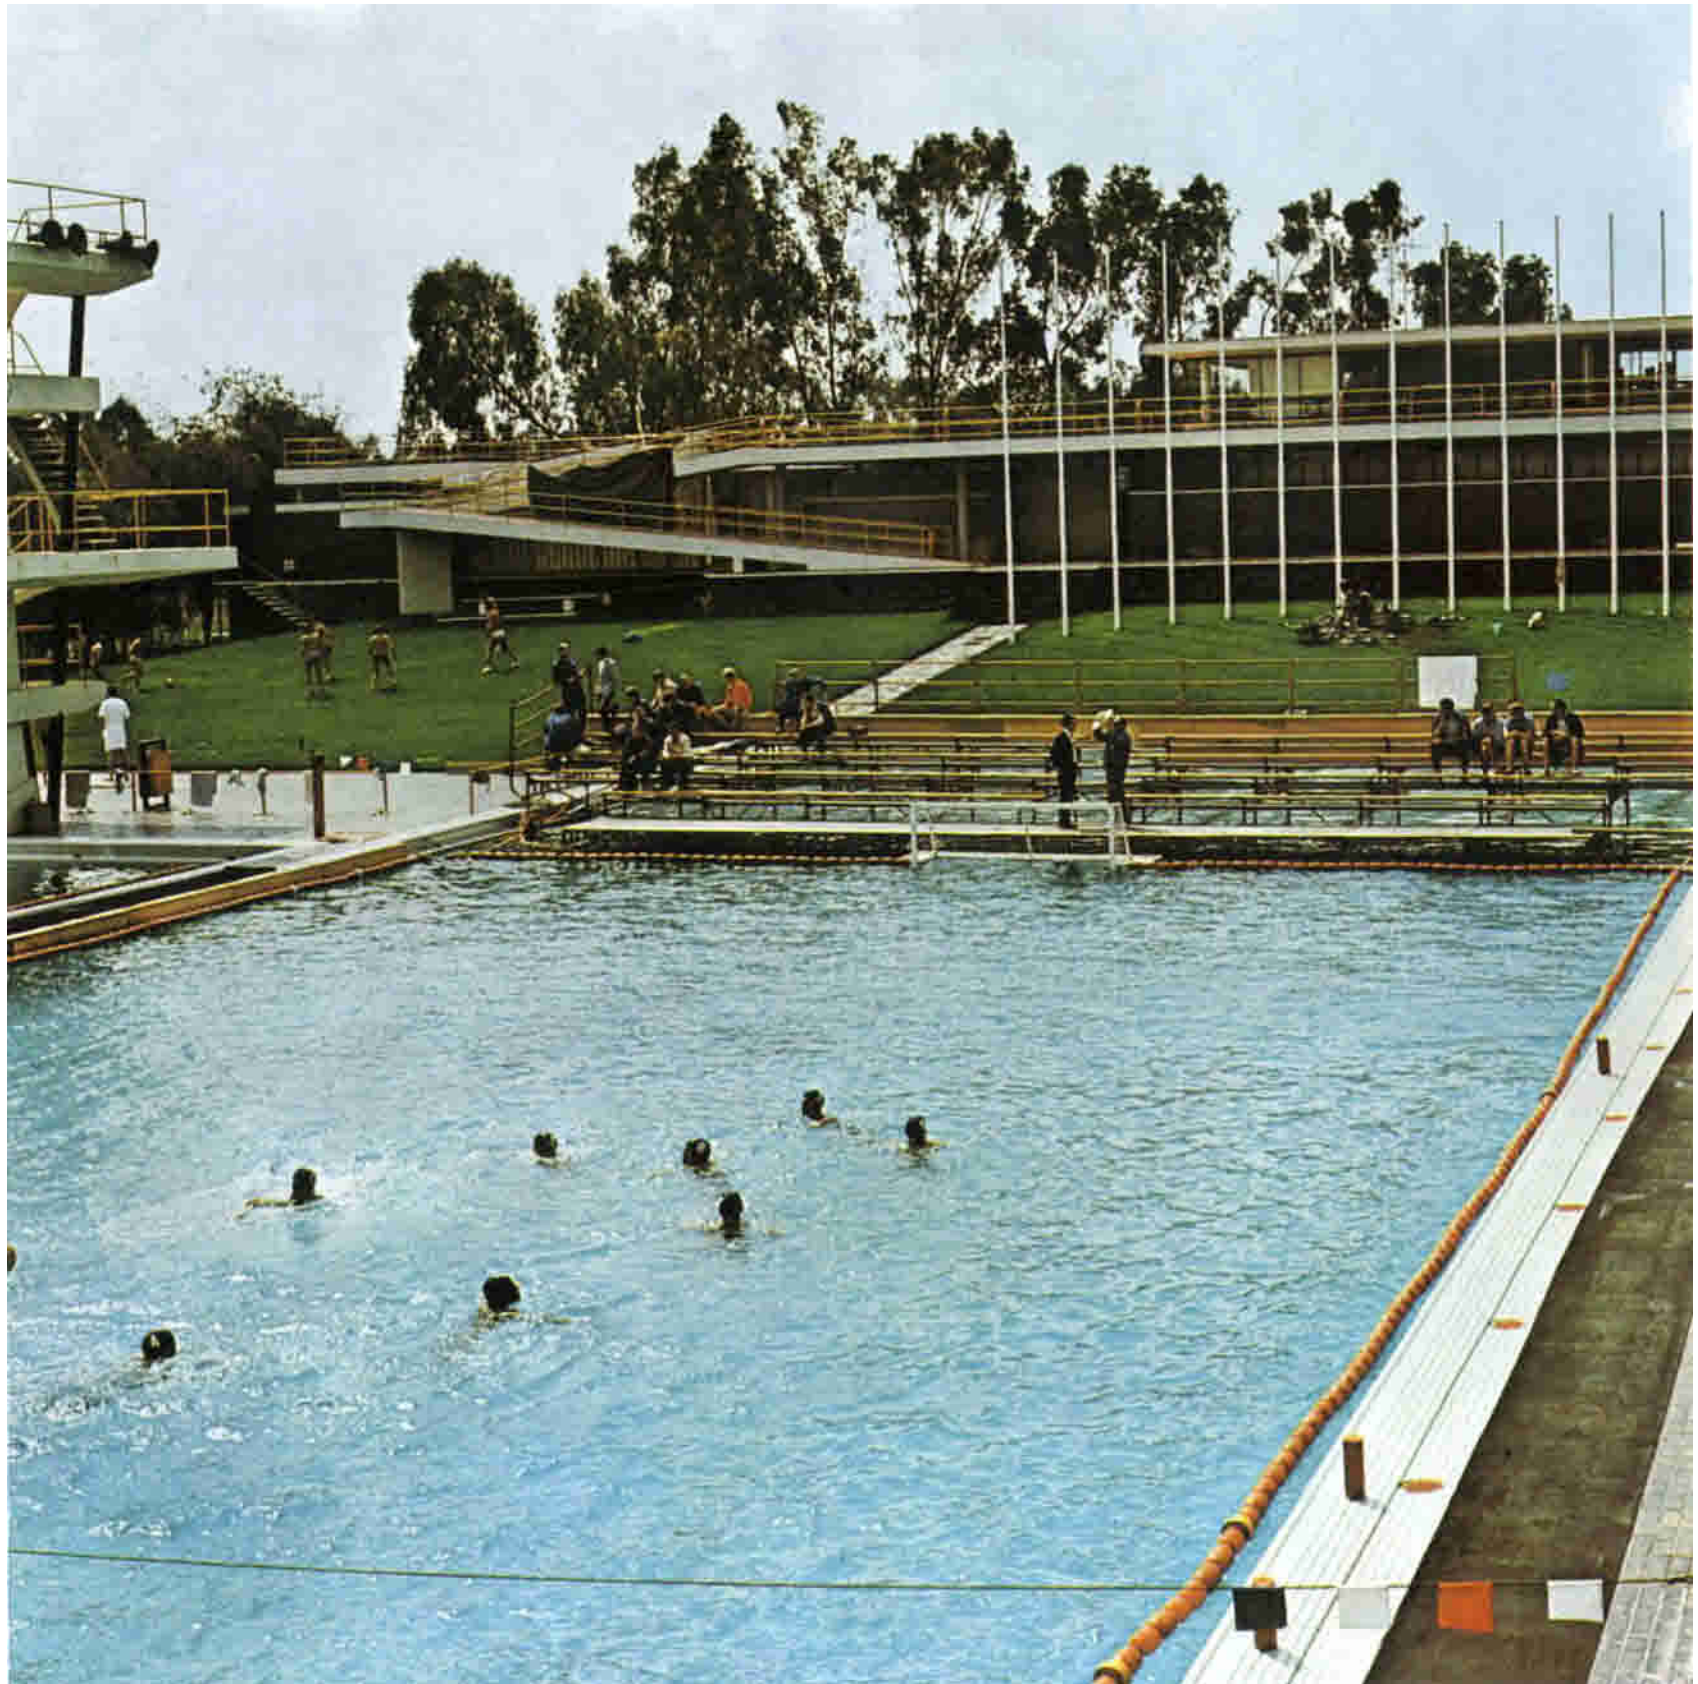

WATER POLO

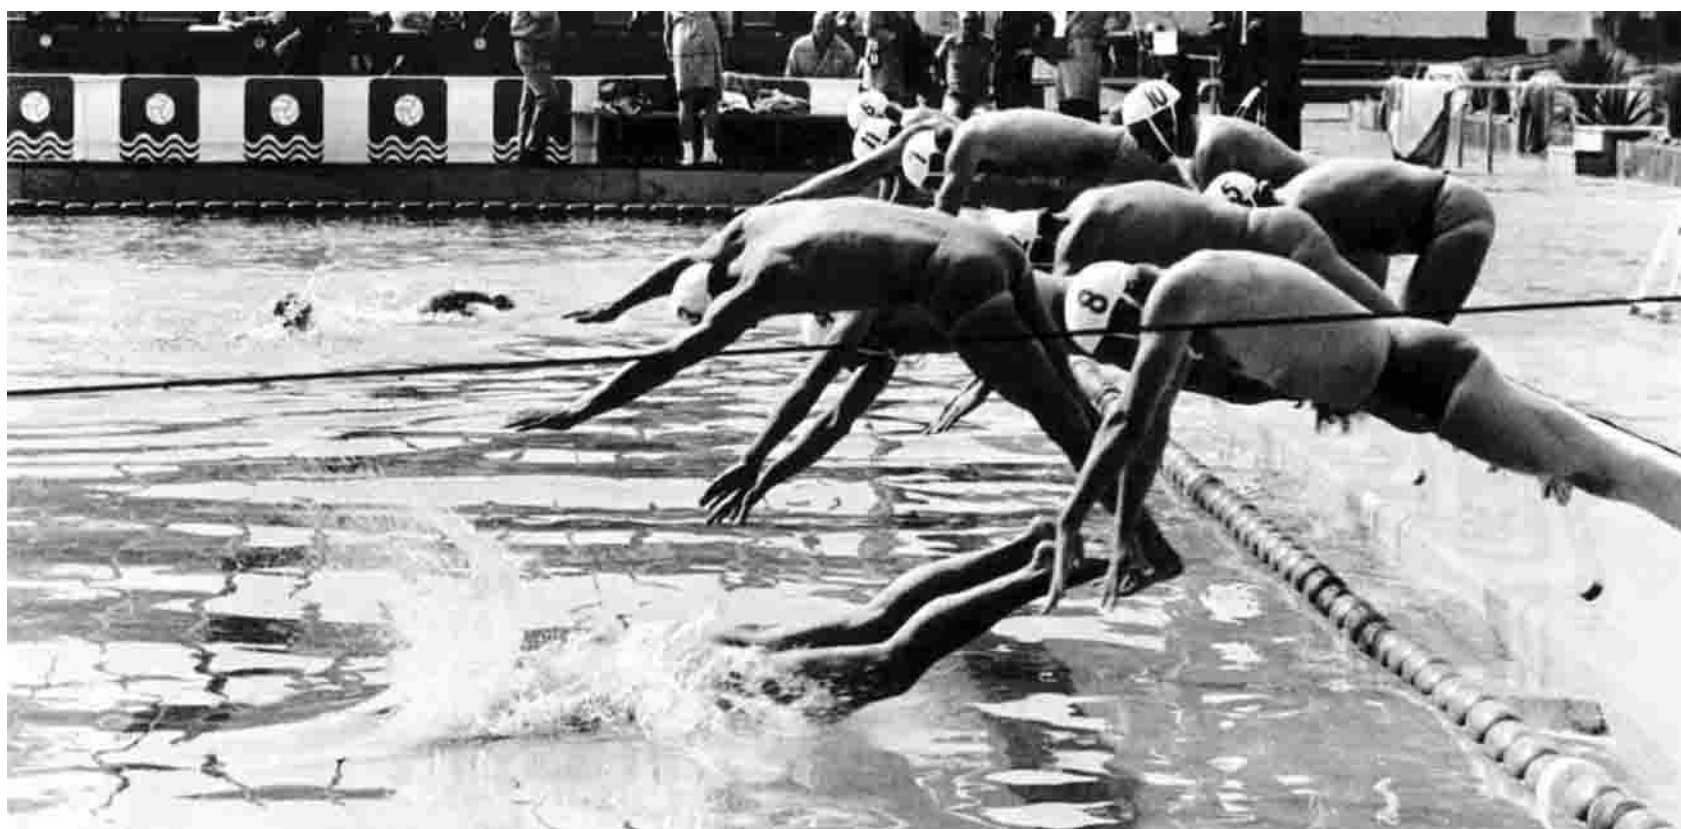

Hungary first entered the ranks of Olympic water-polo powers in 1928, when it won the silver medal behind Germany. Since then, in eight successive Olympic Games, the Magyars never failed to take home a medal of some kind—accumulating five gold, two silver and a bronze. Yugoslavia, although it could not match that record, won three silver medals in recent years. And the U.S.S.R., beginning in 1956, took either a silver or a bronze at each Olympiad. At the end of round-robin play in the Mexico City tournament, these "Big Three" teams, plus Italy, prepared to battle it out for the honors. In the semi-finals, the U.S.S.R. defeated Italy and Yugoslavia bested Hungary. The two losers then met in the final for third place—a bitter contest for half its length, until Hungary broke it open with six straight goals to run its string of water-polo medals through nine consecutive Olympiads. Then came the confrontation between the Soviet Union and Yugoslavia to determine possession of the gold. It was a rough, free-swinging game, with both teams employing the same simple strategy: shoot often and give no quarter. At the end of regulation time, the score was tied 11-11. Both teams were thoroughly exhausted when the four-minute overtime began, but Yugoslavia pushed in two goals during the period to capture its first gold medal in water polo.

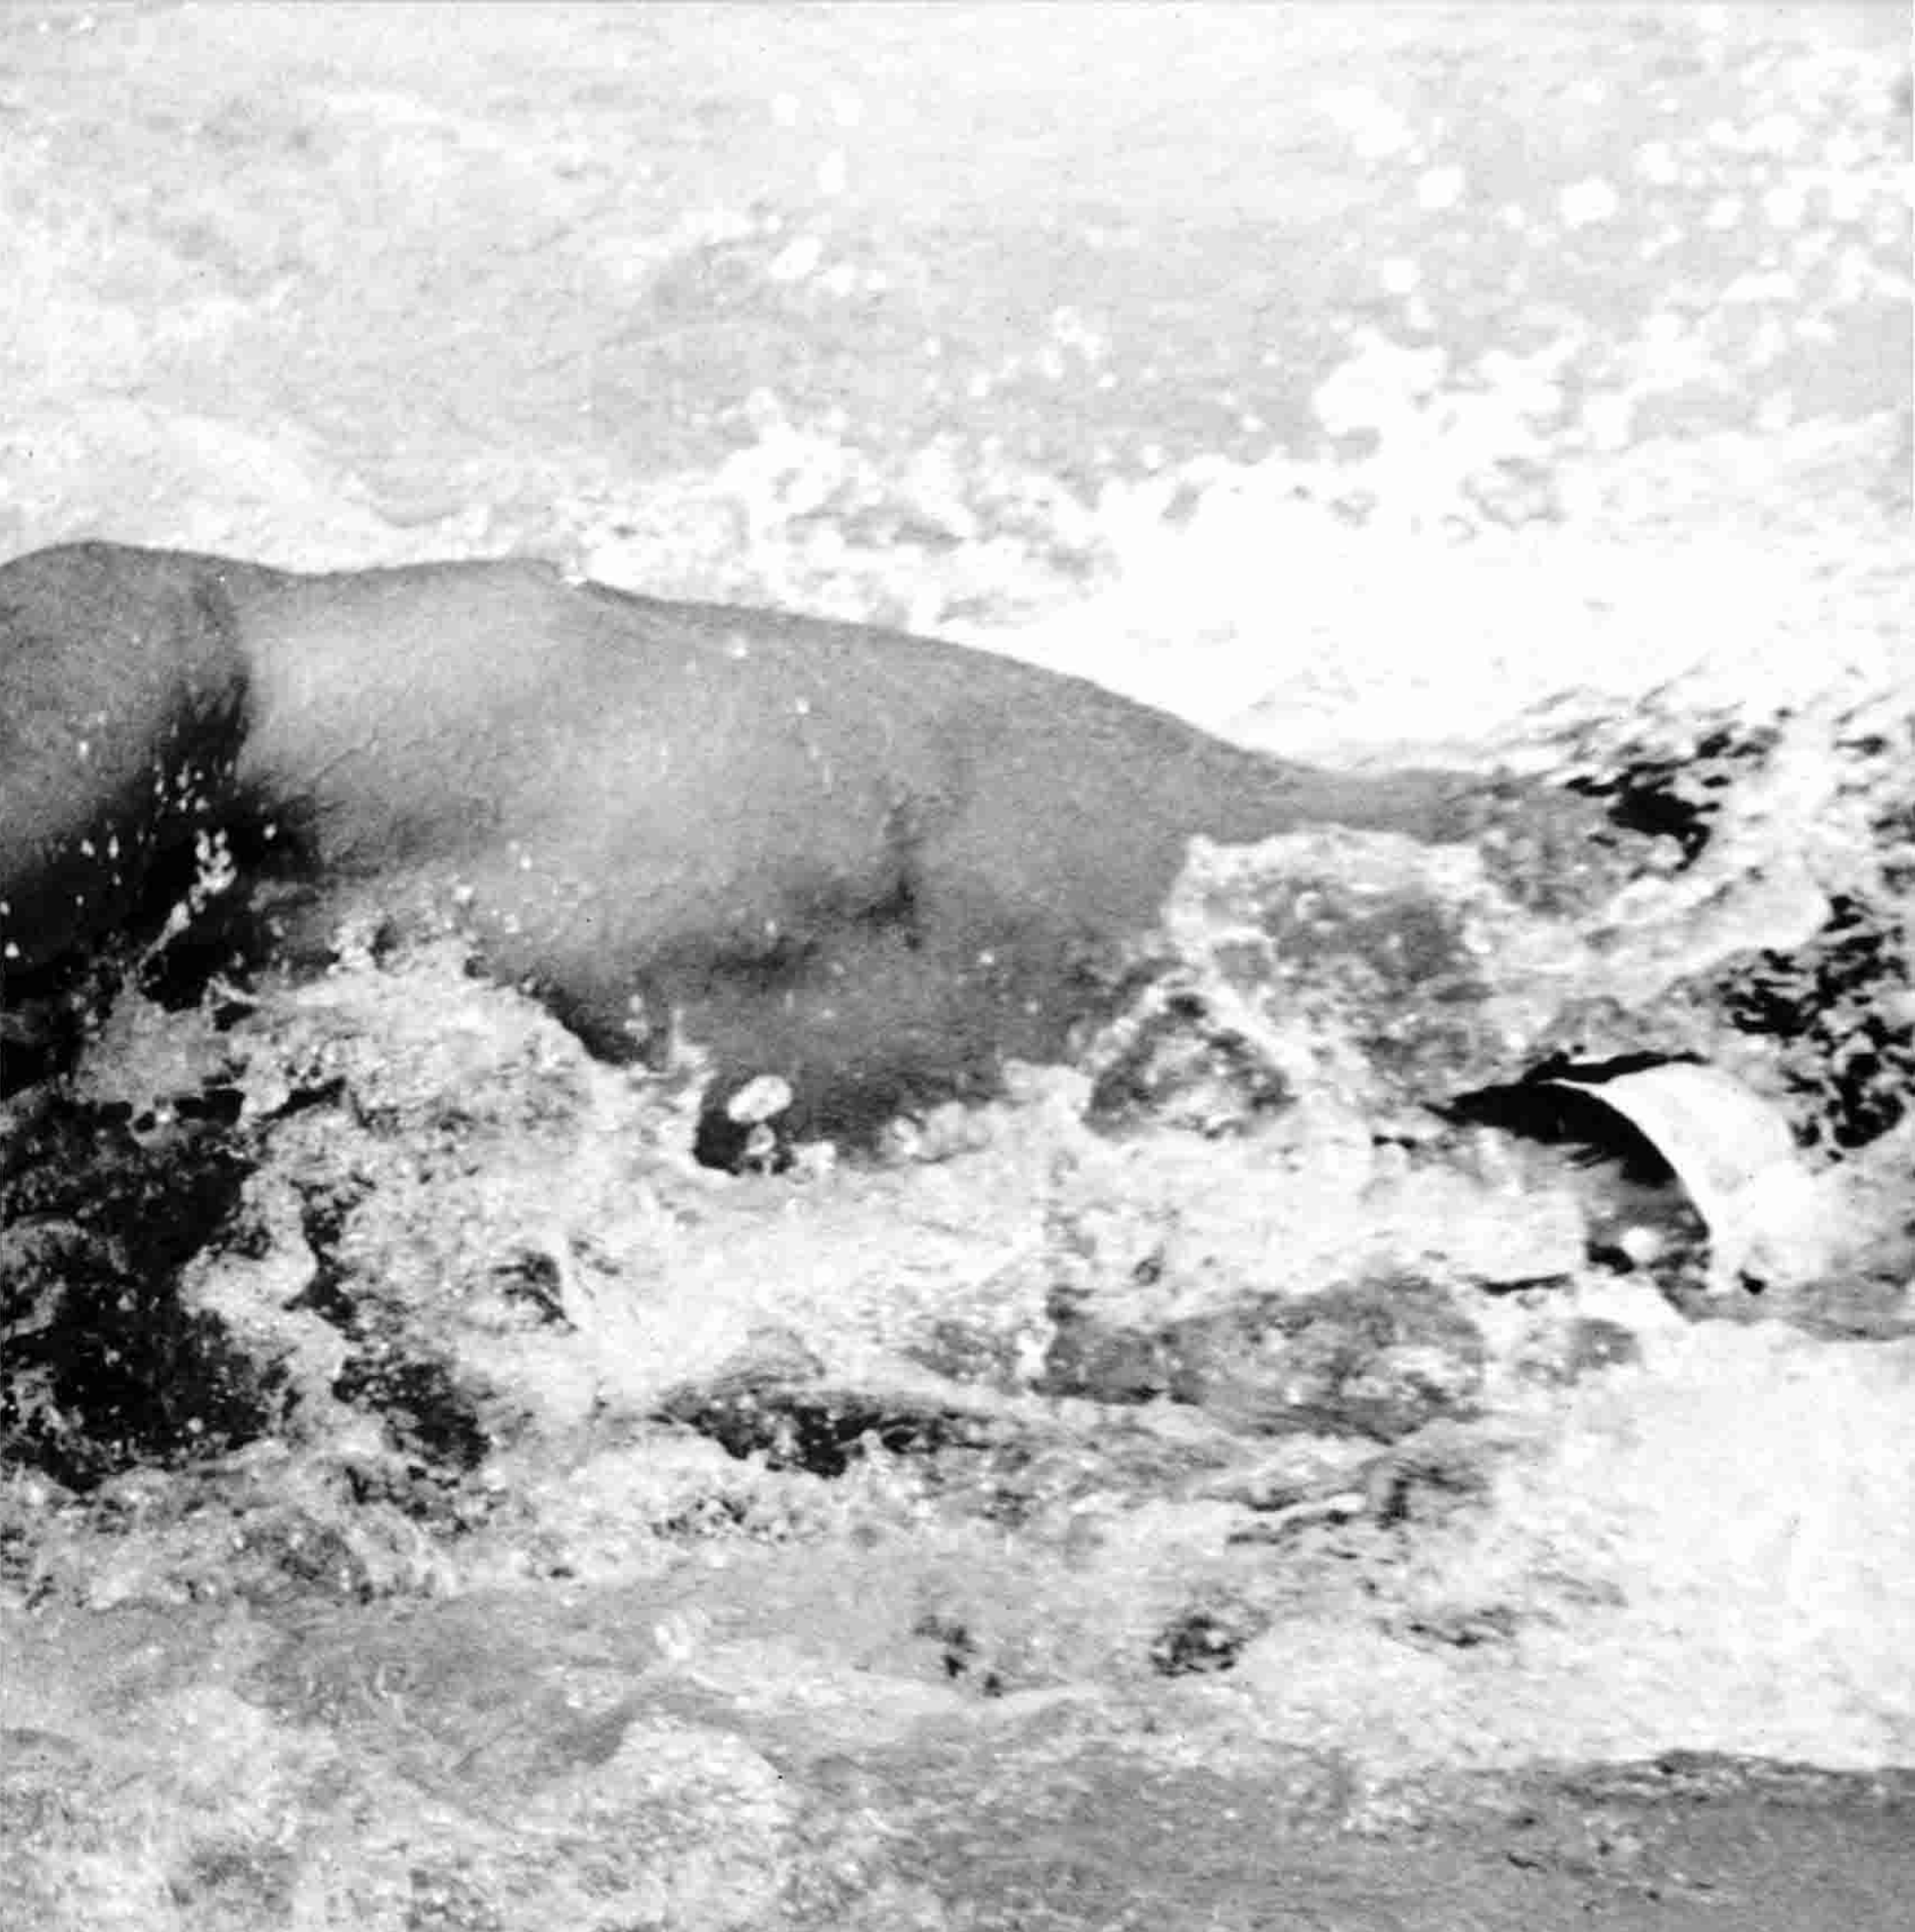

Avant le début des compétitions, les joueurs de water-polo s'échauffent dans la piscine de la Cité universitaire. Départ en plongée de l'équipe allemande, tandis que d'autres athlètes se dorant au soleil en attendant leur tour. Quatorze pays allaient s'opposer à l'Italie et à la Hongrie, tous bien décidés à leur enlever la suprématie qu'elles détenaient depuis trente-six ans en water-polo.

At the University City Swimming Pool, players go through their final drills prior to the start of competition. The German team takes to the water while other athletes, enjoying the Mexican sunshine, await their turn in the tank. Along with thirteen other teams, the Germans were out to break Italy and Hungary's 36-year domination of Olympic water polo.

Plaquage de Sandic par le Japonais Kuwayama (N° 2) au cours de la dernière rencontre préliminaire. Pour pouvoir supplanter l'Allemagne de l'Est et participer à la finale, les Slaves avaient besoin de battre le Japon avec 13 points d'avance. Résultat largement atteint puisqu'ils gagnèrent par 17 à 2. Poursuivi par Borell, le Hongrois Sarosi dribble vers le but espagnol. Les détenteurs du titre n'eurent aucun mal à remporter ce match, pas plus d'ailleurs que ceux les opposant aux autres équipes du groupe A. Seuls les Soviétiques, deuxièmes au classement final, se défendirent farouchement avant de perdre 5-6.

Japan's Kuwayama (2) and Yugoslavia's Sandic clash in the last round-robin contest, which the Slavs had to win by an improbable 13-point margin to beat out East Germany for a place along with Italy in the finals for the medals. They made it with goals to spare, thrashing to a 17-2 victory. With Spain's Borell in hot pursuit (above), Sarosi of Hungary moves the ball toward the enemy goal. The defending champions had little trouble routing Spain in this contest and vanquishing all their other Group-A foes. Only the second-place Soviets made a close game of it before succumbing 5-6.

Le gardien de but soviétique semble pris au dépourvu par un tir de Sandic (N° 10). Ce match de finale fut particulièrement rude puisque 20 buts sur 24 furent marqués à la suite d'un penalty. Enfin, après deux buts en prolongation, la Yougoslavie remportait sa première médaille d'or de water-polo.

The Italians, downed by the U.S.S.R. in the other semi-final, again went under as Hungary won to extend its streak of Olympic water-polo medals to nine. A shot by Sandic (10) at the Russian goal goes wide of the mark (above). In a rough and thrill-packed final—in which all but 4 of the 24 goals scored came on penalties—Yugoslavia took its first water-polo gold medal with two overtime tallies, after the regular contest ended in an 11-11 deadlock.

YACHTING

Le samedi 12 octobre le flambeau olympique arrivait à Acapulco, dont les équipements avaient été entièrement rénovés depuis deux ans pour faire de la station un véritable port olympique. Quarante-et-une nations avaient envoyé 247 yachtsmen pour disputer les régates, qui commencèrent le lundi suivant et, une semaine plus tard, 33 concurrents montaient sur le podium lors d'une cérémonie organisée au crépuscule sous les palmiers. Les détenteurs des médailles d'argent et de bronze se suivaient de près au total des points, mais il en allait tout autrement pour les cinq lauréats: trois fois champion du monde en catégorie Star, Lowell North (EUA) termina 1er, 3e, 3e, 1er, 2e, 1er, lors de ses six meilleures courses. "J'ai marché bon train", dit-il simplement. Les autres aussi! Dans la catégorie Finn, Valentin Mankin (URS) finit 3e, 1er, 1er, 2e, 2e, 1er, tandis que Rodney Pattison (GBR) mena son Flying Dutchman à un train aussi prodigieux que son nom, le "Supercalifragilisticexpialidocious": 1er, 1er, 1er, 1er, 1er, 2e, terminant souvent avec plus de 2 min. d'avance. George Friedrichs (EUA) montra à plusieurs reprises aux barreaux des Dragons comment on remonte ses adversaires (2e, 1er, 1er, 2e, 1er, 1er). Autre surprise: les trois frères Sundelin (SUE) sur leur 5.5 finirent, en dépit de leur jeunesse, 4es, 1ers, 1ers, 1ers, 1ers, 1ers.

YACHTING

On Saturday, October 12, the Olympic Flame arrived in Acapulco, where the sailing facilities had been transformed by new construction over the past two years into truly Olympic proportions. Forty-one nations had sent 247 yachtsmen to the regatta, and on Monday the races began. A week later, thirty-three men received their honors at a twilight awards ceremony under tropical palms. Point totals were close for silver and bronze medalists, but the case was different for the five Olympic champions. All of them had won decisively. Three-time world champion Lowell North of the U.S. finished 1, 3, 3, 1, 2, 1 in his six best races in the Star class. He simply "went the right way," he said. The others "went the right way," too. The U.S.S.R.'s Valentin Mankin, winner in the Finns, placed 3, 1, 1, 2, 2, 1. Britain's Rodney Pattison skippered his Flying Dutchman to a lead as long as its name (the "Supercalifragilisticexpialidocious"): 1, 1, 1, 1, 1, 2, often finishing more than two minutes ahead. George Friedrichs of the U.S. showed Dragon helmsmen how to come "the right way" from behind, doing so a number of times in compiling a record of 2, 1, 1, 2, 1, 1. Sweden's three Sundelin brothers were so young that some people thought they might not even find the right way to the 5.5 course. But they did—and finished 4, 1, 1, 1, 1, 1.

TENNIS ET PELOTE BASQUE

Après plus de quarante ans, le tennis a été inscrit à nouveau en tant que sport d'exhibition au programme des Jeux Olympiques. Quarante-six concurrents en provenance de quinze pays ont disputé des matchs simples et doubles à Mexico et à Guadalajara, pour la plus grande joie des spectateurs. Par ailleurs, cinq versions d'un jeu basque très ancien ont été présentées en exhibition à Mexico et Acapulco. Le principe de ces jeux, qui se disputent sur des terrains délimités par trois murs, est de lancer la balle sur l'une des parois — "frontis", "mur d'aide" et "rebot" respectivement situés face aux joueurs, sur leur gauche et derrière eux — de façon à ce que l'adversaire (ou les adversaires dans les doubles) ne puissent la renvoyer avant le deuxième rebond. Le plus rapide de ces sports est le jai-alai pour lequel on utilise une petite balle très dure qui, catapultée à une vitesse foudroyante, doit être cueillie et immédiatement renvoyée par le chistera, un long panier d'osier attaché au poignet. Sept équipes participaient au tournoi qui dura deux semaines. L'Espagne, la France et le Mexique s'imposèrent à l'Argentine, l'Uruguay, les Philippines et les Etats-Unis, donnant une excellente démonstration aux spectateurs qui, dans bien des cas, assistaient pour la première fois à une rencontre de pelote basque.

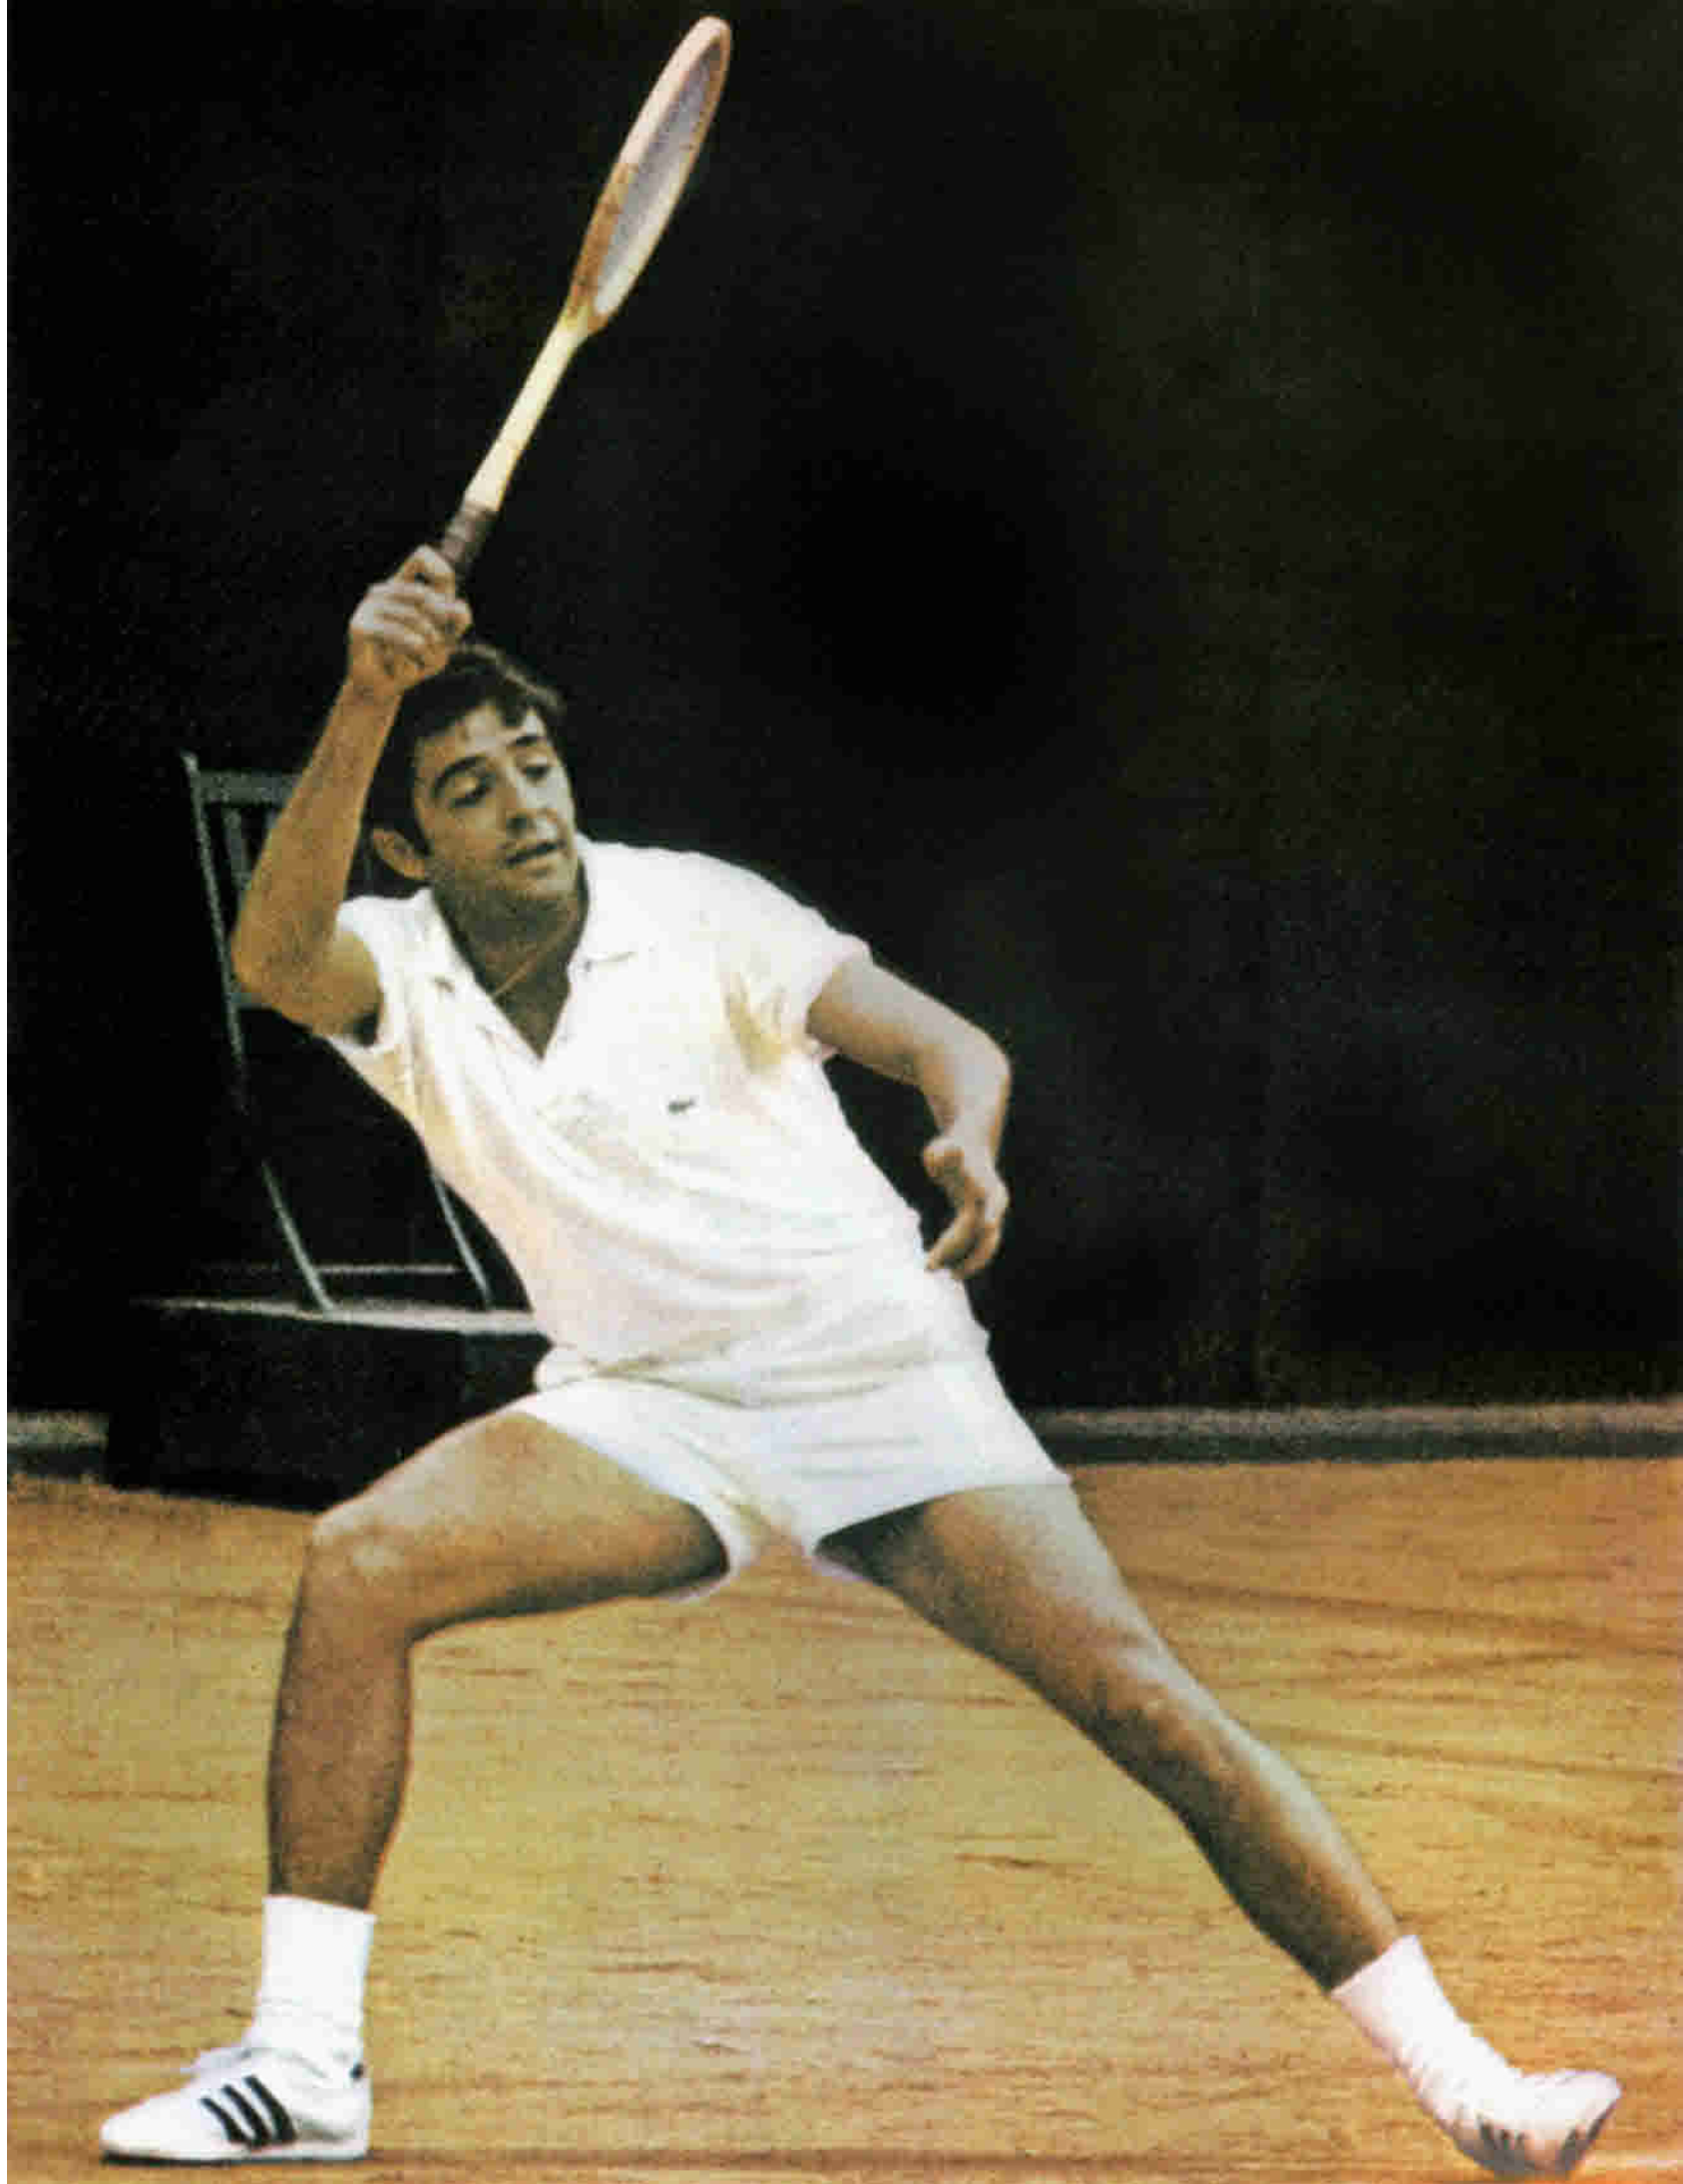

TENNIS AND FRONTON

After a lapse of more than four decades, tennis was re-introduced to Olympic Games spectators as one of two demonstration sports. Forty-six competitors from fifteen nations displayed their skill in singles and doubles matches on courts in the capital and in Guadalajara, and the tournament was received with enthusiasm by both players and fans. In addition, five versions of an old Basque game were presented in Mexico City and Acapulco as the second demonstration sport. In all these games, which are played on three-sided courts, the basic idea is to have the ball strike the short front wall—making use also of the long left or "helping" wall and the back or "rebound" wall—in such a way that the opposing player (or players in doubles) cannot make a fair return before the ball hits the floor twice. The fastest of these games is jai-alai, in which the small, hard ball, rebounding at terrific speed, is caught in—and in the same motion hurled out of—a long wicker basket strapped tightly to the wrist. Teams from seven nations participated in the two-week-long tournament, with Spain, France and Mexico generally winning over Argentina, Uruguay, the Philippines and the U.S. The fast-moving action and intense competitiveness of these games held a great appeal for the many spectators who were seeing them for the first time.

CEREMONIE DE CLOTURE

Salué par une salve de vingt et un coups de canon, le président du Mexique, M. Gustavo Díaz Ordaz, prit place dans la loge d'honneur située au milieu des gradins. C'était le 27 octobre et le soir tombait tandis que l'on s'affairait sur la pelouse du Stade olympique pour enlever les obstacles, après la remise des médailles aux gagnants du Grand Prix des Nations, l'élégante épreuve qui avait mis fin, comme le veut la tradition, aux compétitions sportives des Jeux de la XIX Olympiade. Un groupe de gymnastes danois vint alors distraire le public tandis que les drapeaux grec, mexicain et allemand flottaient au-dessus de l'immense tableau de marquage. Puis une petite brise s'éleva, à la plus grande satisfaction des 100 000 spectateurs qui, en manches de chemise, s'épongeaient le front depuis le début de cette chaude journée. Les drapeaux et les oriflammes olympiques se mirent à claquer dans le vent. La foule, habituée à la fraîcheur des nuits de Mexico, commença à enfiler manteaux et pull-overs: le crépuscule fit peu à peu place à la nuit et le stade s'illumina.

Quelques instants plus tard, la foule immense lança son cri de bienvenue aux athlètes qui avaient réalisé tant d'exploits au cours des deux semaines passées. Élégamment vêtus, les porte-drapeaux des 113

CLOSING CEREMONY

An echoing twenty-one howitzer salute announced the arrival of Mexico's chief of state, President Gustavo Díaz Ordaz, in the midfield dignitaries' box. It was early evening of Sunday, October 27, and the obstacles were being removed from the Olympic Stadium's green infield after the presentation of the awards for the Team Jumping Grand Prix—the colorful and elegant final sports event of the Games of the XIX Olympiad. A group of Danish gymnasts came out to entertain the crowd. The flags of Greece, Mexico and Germany were flying from staffs atop the huge scoreboard as dusk settled over the scene. Soon a light breeze arose—very welcome to the hundred thousand shirtsleeved spectators after the long sun-drenched day—and set flags and Olympic pennants fluttering. The crowd, well prepared for Mexico City's cool nights, slipped into sweaters and coats, as the gymnasts completed their program and retired. Twilight quickly turned to night, and the stadium suddenly came ablaze with daylight brightness as banks of floodlights were turned on.

A moment later the huge crowd erupted in a roar of welcome, giving vent to its feelings for the men and women who had performed with such outstanding success over the past two weeks. The smartly-clad nations firent leur entrée dans le stade en file indienne, au son de la joyeuse fanfare de l'orchestre olympique. De même qu'à la cérémonie d'Ouverture, le point de mire était l'haltérophile soviétique qui, dédaignant la courroie de cuir dont se servaient ses compagnons, soutint à nouveau d'un seul bras les couleurs de son pays. Puis les athlètes s'avancèrent en rangs de huit ou dix: six représentants pour chaque nation, sauf pour le Mexique dont la délégation au grand complet ferma le défilé. Marchant d'une allure souple et non au pas, échangeant sourires et saluts dans toutes les langues, ils pénétrèrent en masse sur le stade, toute distinction de nationalité abolie. Les applaudissements durèrent jusqu'au moment où ils se rangèrent sur la pelouse centrale, encadrés par l'équipe mexicaine vêtue de blanc pour symboliser la fraternité exprimée en ces termes par le président Díaz Ordaz, sous le haut patronage duquel étaient placés les Jeux: "Nous offrons notre amitié à tous les peuples de la terre et souhaitons la leur en retour".

Le silence se fit de nouveau lorsque, debout au milieu du stade, M. Avery Brundage, président du Comité international olympique, prononça en espagnol ces mots solennels: "Je déclare terminés les Jeux de la XIX Olympiade et invite la jeunesse du monde entier à se réunir dans quatre ans à Munich, où seront célébrés les Jeux de la XX Olympiade".

Une salve de coups de canon retentit soudain, les lumières du stade s'éteignirent et des projecteurs illuminèrent le drapeau olympique qui flottait toujours au sommet du mât dominant les gradins. Lentement, le pavillon orné des cinq anneaux fut amené et reçu par un groupe de cadets de la Marine mexicaine en uniforme bleu et blanc, qui se retirèrent en le portant au-dessus de leur tête. Le stade n'était plus maintenant éclairé que par une seule lueur: tous les yeux se tournèrent alors vers la Flamme olympique qui brûlait constamment depuis le 12 octobre. Le silence se fit tandis qu'elle s'éteignait progressivement. Puis soudain, les énormes lettres "MEXICO 68" inscrites sur le tableau électronique firent place à "MUNICH 72". Les fusées du feu d'artifice éclatèrent dans le ciel pendant un bon quart d'heure et tandis que, dans l'obscurité irradiée par un pluie d'étoiles, les athlètes rangés derrière les drapeaux amorçaient leur dernier tour de piste, une vive émotion s'empara de l'assistance. Debout, les 100 000 spectateurs — dont la plupart avaient les larmes aux yeux — applaudissaient et laissaient éclater leur enthousiasme: "Magnifique! Bravo! Au revoir! Adieu!" Des fleurs, des chapeaux de paille, des foulards volèrent depuis les standard bearers of all the 113 competing nations were entering the stadium, marching in single file to the gay, spirited music of the Olympic band. As on opening day, one of the many highlights of the march-past was the Soviet weightlifter who once again held his country's colors straight out in front of him in one mighty fist without benefit of the leather hip-rest needed by the other flag bearers. Then, not marching but walking easily, eight and ten abreast, the Olympic athletes followed: six representatives from each national contingent—except for the host country, which entered last and in full strength. No longer separated by nations, the young men and women moved in a solid phalanx, smiling and exchanging greetings in scores of languages. The roar from the stands never let up until all the athletes had assembled on the central grass, surrounded by the Mexican team, which was dressed all in white to reflect the fraternal concept expressed by President Díaz Ordaz as Patron of the Games: "We offer and desire friendship with all the peoples of the world."

The crowd gradually became quiet again, and then Avery Brundage, President of the International Olympic Committee, speaking in Spanish from the middle of the field, made this solemn pronouncement: "I declare the Games of the XIX Olympiad closed and call upon the youth of all nations to assemble four years hence at Munich, there to celebrate with us the Games of the XX Olympiad." With that, a volley of howitzers boomed, the floodlights that illuminated the stadium went out, and through the darkness spotlights were trained on the Olympic flag, which still waved atop its mast at the edge of the field. Slowly, the five-ringed banner came down, into the hands of a group of blue-and-white-uniformed Mexican naval cadets, who moved out of the arena carrying it aloft. Now there was only one source of light left in Olympic Stadium. Everyone turned his eyes on it—the Olympic Flame that had burned so steadily and proudly since October 12. The stands fell silent as it was slowly extinguished. Then, in an instant, the huge letters on the scoreboard changed from MEXICO 68 to MUNICH 72. Fireworks blasted off in a massive display—which would continue without letup for a quarter of an hour—and, while the black sky burst open with a rain of exploding stars and the athletes started off behind the flags on a final circuit of the track, the stadium came alive in a spontaneous show of emotion. The spectators—the entire hundred thousand of them—rose to their feet, shouting, applauding, trying to express what they felt in their hearts: Well done! Bravo!

tribunes et des milliers de mouchoirs s'agitèrent lentement dans la nuit en guise d'adieu. Touchés par l'accueil chaleureux et triomphal que leur avait réservé le peuple mexicain, les concurrents — dont beaucoup emportaient en souvenir un chapeau de "charro" à larges bords — répondaient gaiement aux ovations.

Le thème de la "Cinquième Symphonie" de Beethoven, qui avait accompagné la remise des médailles gagnées par la République fédérale d'Allemagne et la République démocratique allemande, fut joué en l'honneur des prochains Jeux. Puis un orchestre composé d'un millier de "mariachis" entonna un air plein d'allégresse, "La Negra", suivi de la triomphale "Guadalajara" et finalement du traditionnel et mélancolique chant d'adieu mexicain, "Las Golondrinas".

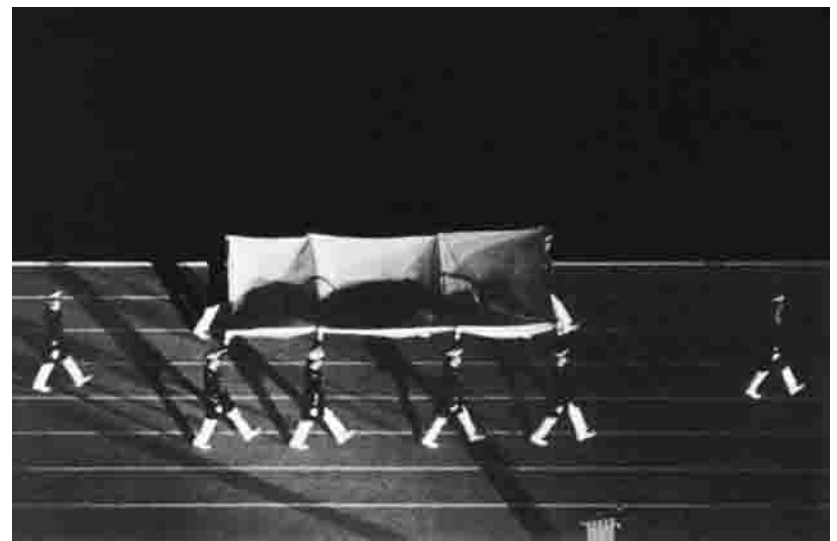

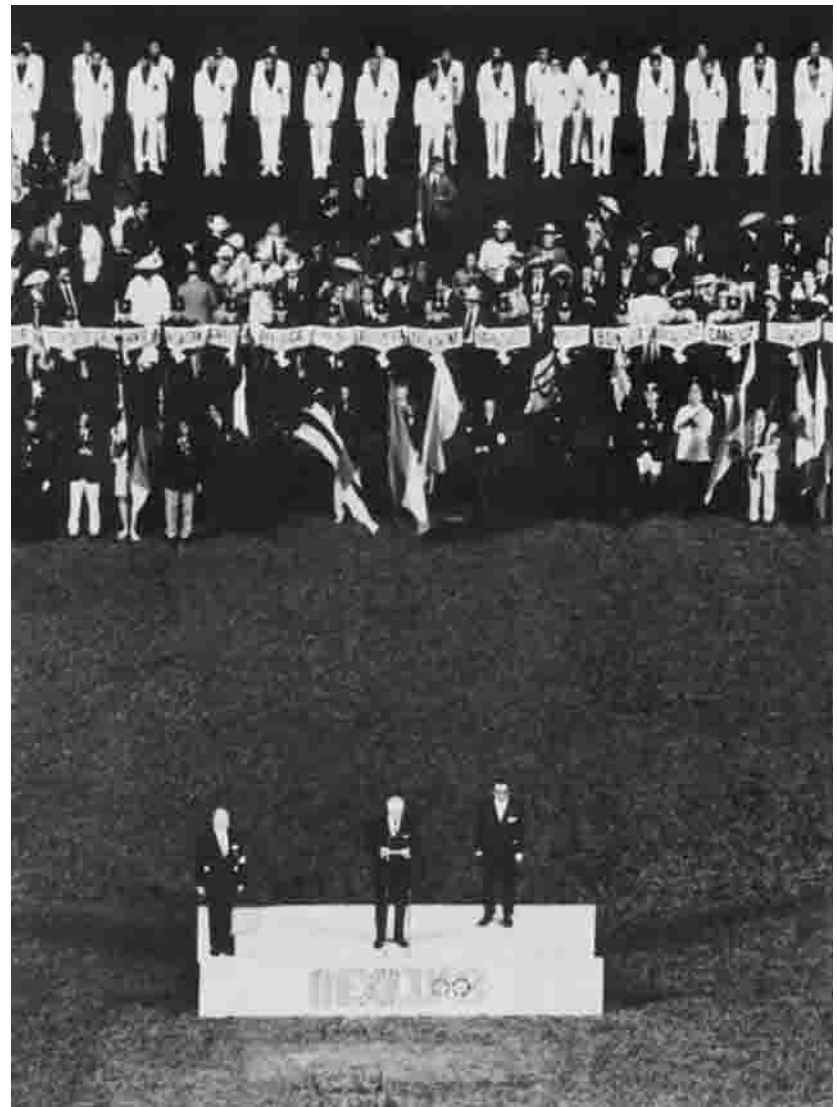

Mais la cérémonie ne devait pas se terminer là. Après avoir effectué un dernier tour, les porte-drapeaux avaient disparu comme prévu, mais les athlètes, au lieu de les suivre, continuèrent à célébrer l'événement et bientôt, le public descendit des tribunes pour les rejoindre sur la piste. Concurrents et spectateurs, délégués et assistants, hommes et femmes de tous les continents, désireux de prolonger la cérémonie de Clôture des Jeux de la XIX Olympiade, chantèrent et dansèrent durant des heures au son ininterrompu des trompettes des mariachis, faisant de cette dernière soirée une gigantesque "fiesta".

Bientôt tout Mexico fut en liesse. Ceux qui n'avaient pas eu la chance d'obtenir des billets pour assister à la cérémonie, mais l'avaient suivie à la télévision ou à la radio, s'élancèrent dans les rues pour se joindre à la foule en délire. D'interminables files de voitures se dirigèrent vers l'élégante "zone rose" ou le centre de la ville et pendant des heures, les conducteurs scandèrent de leur klaxon les trois syllabes qui n'avaient pas cessé de résonner dans l'air durant deux semaines: "ME-XI-CO! MEXICO!" Fièvre et heureuse, la capitale toute entière était dehors, manifestant un enthousiasme débordant, qui surpassait peut-être encore celui qui avait accompagné tous les événements des Jeux Olympiques, et ce fut seulement au petit matin que l'on dut se résoudre à l'évidence: l'Olympiade était terminée.

Hail... and farewell! There were tears in many eyes. Flowers, straw hats and scarves flew into the arena from the stands as the Olympians walked by, and the dark background rippled white with handkerchiefs being waved in an emotional good-bye. The athletes waved back—many of them with the sombreros or wide-brimmed "charro" hats they carried as souvenirs of Mexico—saying good-bye to a people who had opened their arms wide to them in admiration and affection.

In honor of the next celebration of the Games, the theme from Beethoven's Ninth Symphony was played—the same theme that had been used at the awards ceremonies whenever Germany or East Germany won a sports event. Then a thousand "mariachis" took over, sounding the gay notes of "La Negra," the bold ones of "Guadalajara," the slow, sad ones of "Las Golondrinas"—Mexico's traditional song of farewell. The celebration, however, refused to end. The flag bearers, after their tour of the arena, had exited as scheduled, but the athletes, instead of following them out of the stadium, stayed on to keep the festivity going, and the crowd flowed down from the stands onto the field to join them. Athletes and spectators, officials and aides, men and women, Europeans and Americans and Africans and Asians, unwilling to see this last ceremony come to an end, began what turned into a huge fiesta—singing and dancing and laughing together under the open sky for hours, while the "mariachis" played on and on.

The fiesta spread quickly outside the stadium into all parts of Mexico City. People who had not been fortunate enough to have closing-day tickets—and had watched the ceremony on television or listened to it over the radio—poured out of their homes and joined their neighbors in the streets. Caravans of cars set out toward the city's elegant "Pink Zone" and the downtown area, and for hours drivers kept sounding their horns in unison, over and over again, with the accented triple notes that had filled the air constantly during the past two weeks: "ME-XI-CO! ME-XI-CO!" The proud and happy city was wide awake and friendly, thrilled beyond anything it had ever known by the spectacular success of its Olympic Games—and it was many hours before everyone was ready to accept the fact that this Olympiad had finally ended.

Notes on the digitized version of the Official Report of the Organizing Committee of the Games of the XIX Olympiad Mexico 1968 (Volume 3)

The digital version of the Official Report of the Games of the XIX Olympiad was created with the intention of producing the closest possible replica of the original printed document. These technical notes describe the differences between the digital and printed documents and the technical details of the digital document.

The original document

The original paper version of the 1968 Official Report (Volume 3) has dimensions of 11.3 x 11.4" (28.5cm x 29cm).

The volume's spine is pale yellow in color. The image of a dove and number "3" appear in gold on the spine.

The book has 868 pages.

The fonts used in the digital version book for text, photograph captions and chapter headings are Univers and such system fonts as best approximate the original fonts.

Special features of the digital version:

- The spine is not included in the digital version.
- Blank pages are not included in the digital version.
- The digital version includes a bookmark list that functions as a hyper linked table of contents. Selecting a topic heading will take you to the corresponding section in the document.
